

WHO KILLED CHEA VICHEA?

A testament to the power of documentary film — Library Journal, May 2012

★★★ Recommended — Video Librarian, March/April 2012

- PEABODY AWARD WINNER 2012 -

In 2004, Cambodian union president Chea Vichea was assassinated in broad daylight at a newsstand in Phnom Penh. Two young men were arrested, convicted, and sentenced to twenty years in prison. Both had alibis.

Director Bradley Cox's eye-opening one-hour documentary Who Killed Chea Vichea? offers an unprecedented look at the inner workings of modern Cambodia, raising important and current questions about the rule of law, democratic development and globalization. Banned in Cambodia.

An investigative masterpiece ... see this film and show it to others.

— Asian Educational Media Service, Spring/Summer 2013 (Robert McKinley)

Spectacular, so well made and able to produce a complex understanding of a complex situation in a short time. And visually and sonically, it's absolutely superb.

— Charles Sullivan, Program Coordinator, Center for Southeast Asia Studies, University of Michigan

A devastatingly effective piece of investigative journalism ... Our screening of the film was very well received, and in fact left the audience a little stunned ... The lessons learned here were more immediately useful and had more impact than any university lecture.

— Sarah Maxim, Vice Chair, Center for Southeast Asia Studies, University of California - Berkeley

Most impressive, deeply thoughtful, beautiful in its intimacy and deep understanding, and restrained in its judgments.

— Michael Fink, Professor and Filmmaker, Rhode Island School of Design

Who Killed Chea Vichea? is of particular interest to scholars in Asia Studies, Political Science, International Relations, Law and Economics. It has screened at the National Press Club, at colleges and universities including Harvard, Macalester, NYU, Ohio University and the universities of Calgary, California-Berkeley, Illinois, Michigan and Washington, and on public television through the National Educational Television Association.

The educational license includes library holding, classroom use and other non-public screenings within your institution.

For information on public screenings and speaking engagements please see www.whokilledcheavichea.com/educ.html.

Included on the DVD

4x3 standard and 16x9 wide-screen formats

English, French and Spanish subtitles, accessible English captioning, all-Khmer-language audio option

Extra video features on the garment industry and the Cambodian court system

Extended interviews with Chea Vichea and other principal figures

Released August 2011 • 58 minutes • NTSC • Color • Dolby 2.0 Stereo • ISBN 978-1-4507-9887-7

DVD with educational license: US$235

Postage included. Reduced price available to public schools, libraries, community groups.

Contact: sales@loudmouthfilms.net

More information: www.whokilledcheavichea.com/educ.html